PROFESSION: Basketball Player for the Lagoons

MY FAVORITE PASTIME: Painting with Rob Boss

THE WORST THING: Squeaky tennis shoes

June Fondue is legit. A couple months ago, I filmed an exercise video with her, and I was floored by her skill. In the video, June deadlifted five people. I can only deadlift one person. She's a primo woman, and her workouts have upped my game. I'm excited for her new fitness video "We Can Work It Out." I'm sure it'll jump off the shelves in every Blockbuster in the nation.

I love playing basketball for the Lagoons, but my wife Giovanna comes first. She's a mad talented woman. She's a famous singer, and I go to all her gigs. My favorite song of hers is "Mama Don't Minister." We make one fine couple.

HOW I KNEW DR. G. BUSTER: Buster designed my spandex basketball uniform

Buster was the primo spandex designer of this decade, and he designed my spandex basketball uniform. It was covered in polka dots. Dots were Buster's style. He also made a spandex spacesuit for the astronaut E.T., but E.T. hated it so much that he blasted it into space. The spandex business is a high risk, high reward enterprise.

A year ago, Buster and Giovanna were engaged, but he left her at the altar. It was a national scandal, and the story was covered by every tabloid and MTV video jockey. Giovanna hid from the spotlight all of last year. It was heartbreaking.

A month ago, I was at the library and unwittingly pulled a book from the shelf, which opened up a secret passage. It led me to Giovanna's hideout. We fell in love at first sight, and three weeks later we got married in a safe house. She came out of hiding just last Saturday.

Buster may have been a famous designer, but in my not-so-humble opinion, he wasn't a competent one. The spandex uniform he made for me was so uncomfortable that I actually scored negative points in the NBA championship game. It was mental. The Lagoons lost, so I lost a bonus $300,000 and a sponsorship with the top toaster company in America. I could've had my kid sister design better spandex than him.

I wasn't the only one who wanted revenge. I met Carmen San Francisco at a Lagoons game, and I found out that she's an expert international thief. She stole spandex blueprints for Buster, but he didn't pay her. She planned to steal Buster's designs and sell them on the black spandex market. Carmen is a most definite master heister, so I hope she was successful.

I always carry my bag of lucky peanuts: last year, a fan threw it to me before a game, and I scored 100 points. It's signed by legendary basketball player Mike Georgian. Giovanna didn't let me bring it tonight because Buster had a deadly allergy to basically anything with the word nut in it: peanuts, walnuts, Nutter Butters, donuts, nutmeg, nutcrackers. Leaving my lucky bag of peanuts at home is probably why someone's dead.
