PROFESSION: Exercise Video Superstar

MY FAVORITE PASTIME: Hosting fondue parties

THE WORST THING: People who don't rewind VHS tapes before returning them

Tonight is the release party for my new exercise video "We Can Work It Out," and it's my best fondue party yet. Mr. Brie and I have known each other since we were children, so I asked him to design the cheese fountains. He's given me cheese advice for every fondue party I've thrown. His company Mr. Brie's Excellent Cheese makes gouda that makes people weep with joy.

I'm thrilled that so many people are here to celebrate watching other people exercise, and I'm stoked for my workout video to hit the Blockbuster shelves. I hope that by this time next week everyone in America will be able to do twenty leg lifts, ten side stretches, and one ballerina twirl.

I started making exercise videos because other people would only work out with me from New Year's to mid-February. By Valentine's Day, none of my friends would exercise with me. Now I can exercise with the whole world!

HOW I KNEW DR. G. BUSTER: Buster designed my spandex exercise outfits

Buster was lauded internationally for his spandex designs, and he fashioned spandex costumes for all the greats: Princess (his daughter), Wizard Johnson, Giovanna, and Bo E. Knife. He also designed the spandex outfit for my exercise video "We Can Work It Out:" a neon pink leotard and bright purple leg warmers. I'm crazy about spandex, and it's mostly a total shame he's dead.

Lizzie Francisco filmed my fitness video, and her partner Carmen is a master thief. Carmen is always ready to steal something, so she carries her heisting tool bag wherever she goes. It's mad heavy because one of her tools is a crowbar.

I'm an internationally lauded fitness star. Last year, I won Germany's prestigious Bambi award, which recognizes cultural icons who have captured the eye of the German public. It usually sits next to my 28 Best Actress awards, but I brought it tonight to show off how adorable it is. Also, Giovanna has a grammy. But just one. She takes it everywhere to remind herself that she is famous.

Buster was a general pain. We fought endlessly about my spandex costumes, and he was totally aggravating. He loved polka dots, I loved stripes. I will never understand polka dots. Who wants to look like they have chicken pox on their clothes?

Buster had a deadly allergy to basically anything with nuts in it: peanuts, walnuts, Nutter Butters, donuts, nutmeg, nutcrackers. It was a mad loss for him because nuts are the power food. I once brought a can of mixed nuts to his studio, and Buster threw a hissy fit and made me take a shower before he'd see me.

Still, I've seen plenty of people with nuts tonight. Princess flew in from Kalamazoo, and I saw her eating from a little bag of airplane peanuts. The author George Andwell wears an heirloom locket with a walnut inside, passed down to him from his great-great-great-okay-great grandfather. Lizzie squirrels away chestnut packets from the craft service table at film shoots, and she's got about fourteen bags in her purse. It's lucky that Buster died before he insisted everyone shower.

Lizzie was constantly talking on her DynaTAC 8000x mobile phone on the set of "We Can Work It Out." The phone takes ten hours to charge and only has a battery life of thirty minutes. When the battery life ran out, she'd get her assistant to get her another phone. Naturally, I eavesdropped on her conversations and learned that she and Buster had some kind of financial dispute. I never worry about money. I'm totally rich.
